

Wolfson Department of Chemical Engineering Special Seminar

Lecture Hall 6, Wolfson Department of Chemical Engineering,

Wednesday 14.12.2016 at 13:30

Name Roey Cahany, LLC

In-House Legal Counsel

Commercial and Legal Aspects of the Day by Day Operations of A Commercial Entity

During the day to day activities and operations of a commercial entity issues and challenges may arise. The purpose of this seminar is to discuss and share certain the commercial and legal implications of acting as a member/employee/officer of a commercial entity- be it a company, corporation, JV, partnership or a non-profit organization.

We will generally discuss the different roles and positions of the various organs of company and the interaction between them.

Some examples and case studies will be provided in order to demonstrate the various issues and challenges which may arise during the operations of commercial organization with specific focus on private and public corporations.

We will also discuss the impact of regulation trends on certain legal, financial and commercial aspects of the operations of a private and public corporations, disputes and crisis management in a dynamic changing environment.

Refreshments will be served at 13:15